Doubling up Shaker Training

NDO Consultants – Experts in Engineering Business

Rushden, United Kingdom, 30 July 2008

Continuing with their successful formula of technical training courses NDO Consultants Ltd are pleased to announce details of their next Vibration Shaker testing seminars.

For the third time in 2008 they will be holding the 'Basics of Vibration Shaker Testing' on September 16 2008 at Loughborough University's Wolfson School of Mechanical Engineering. This one day course has already proven itself extremely popular with over 40 delegates on both previous 2008 dates. Priced to encourage multiple attendees from each company the seminar will be useful to test engineers as well as managers, designers and other peripheral staff who may not actually carry out testing but need an understanding of the methods and results.

To complement this basics course they will be adding an 'Advanced Vibration Shaker Testing' seminar on 17 September 2008 also at Loughborough University. Covering the less commonly used test methods including Shock Response Spectra (SRS), Time Replication (Roadload), Combined Environment, Mixed Mode and also looking at System rating, this seminar is ideal for existing engineers or for test planners looking at more complex and demanding test regimes.

Neill Ovenden, NDO's Managing Director says of the seminars 'Each seminar stands alone as a one day course, so no-one is committed to 2 days out of the office if only one day is appropriate to them. However for those wanting a solid start to finish overview both days would be of great benefit.'

Combining a sensible mix of presentations and practical demonstrations, the seminars enforce the points made by using industry experienced presenters and proven test examples to show real test effects. NDO Consultants have again kept the price low at just £160 per delegate per day this includes lunch, refreshments and full course notes.

The full details of these courses can be found on the NDO Consultants Website www.ndoconsultants.com/training.html
